PARTIAL. Four answers are written from the books; four are not answerable yet and are listed at the end with what each one needs. Do not publish this until the second list is empty, because a family reading a FAQ with holes in it learns that the holes are where the trouble is.

Will this count for high school?

Your core academic work is yours to claim and yours to pace, and you do it on the two mornings you run yourselves. High-school credit is tracked separately from everything else here. It is the one record other people read as a routine matter, which is the honest exception to the first promise we make about your progress being yours.

Will a college accept it?

Here is the whole truth and it is uncomfortable. A transcript from a studio like this one is not yet a thing every college recognises. The bridge to dual enrollment is real work, and we will do it alongside you rather than pretend it is already finished.

What that means in practice: your credit record exists and travels. The fuller record of what you actually did here is a different thing, and the part that lets it physically leave as an export you hold in your hands is not built yet. Until it is, nobody walks the Launch at the end of the three years, because a ceremony that hands you something that is not there is not a ceremony.

What does my learner actually do on the mornings nobody is teaching?

Their reading, their core academics at their own pace, their personal project, and the session's writing. The guide is in the building, at Vibrant Life Tots with the younger children from 9:15 to 11:30, and comes to them around noon for a real check-in. Same site, different room. If they need the guide before noon they go and get them.

They are genuinely running their own hours, and they are never alone in the building. Both of those are true at once, and we would rather say both than only the comfortable one.

What gets written down about my learner, and who reads it?

The Captain's Log is theirs and nobody reads it, including the guide and including you. Growth is only ever shown as movement compared to their own earlier self: never a grade, never a score, never set beside another learner. A parent linked to the account can see which of their learner's own goals are finished, and that is the whole of what anyone else sees.

The agreements record is the exception, and only if a Stop is ever reached. A Stop note goes home the same day and your learner fills it in with the guide. The count clears at the start of each year, and none of it goes on a transcript or travels with the Growth Record.

Not answerable yet, and what each needs

Question a family will ask	What is missing
Can my learner still play sports?	Whether a Launch Pad learner can join a district team, a homeschool league, or neither, and under which rule. Nobody has checked Idaho's position or the district's. This is a phone call, not a writing problem
What if we move mid-year?	Answerable once section 3 of `launch-pad-how-you-leave-v0.1.md` is settled. That document now says what leaves with you and what does not. What it cannot say is whether the school's four-meeting withdrawal process

	applies to a Launch Pad family, which is Erin and Jenna, and what is refunded, which needs the price
Is there a diploma?	Related to the credit answer above but not the same question, and the honest answer depends on what Vibrant Life as a school already does or does not issue. Jenna holds this one
Who owns the dual-enrollment clock?	The family's-path document asks for "the FAQ with a named owner for the dual-enrollment clock." There is no name. Until there is, the college answer above has nobody standing behind it

Two of the four are phone calls (sports, dual enrollment). Two are decisions, the diploma with Jenna and the withdrawal process with Erin and Jenna together. The document that was missing is now written; what is left inside it is the decision, not the writing.
